FEARFUL FIGHTING AT LIAOYANG,

The Paris Journal publishes the following telegram from its Correspondent with the retreating Army, dated Yeh-tal, September 3:-

'After the awful butchery of the night of August 31, during which the tronches of the first line of the Lisoyang defences wore filled with several layers of dead heared one above the other, the Japanese hauled their batteries on to the heights which they had captured during the morning. At two o'clock in the afternoon of the same day their shells commenced to fall on the station of Line-yang and the Russian city in the vicinity, but sparing a the Chinese quarter. 'In the fortified place' all the Military and civil officials were occupied with the immediate removal of an enormous quantity of rolling stock. More than five hundred waggons filled with wounded, provisions, and household goods thus left the station under the enemy's fire. The civil population, which up to then had been proceeding leisurely with their household removals, now fled in a panic,

Shells burst everywhere, even over the hospital, and wounded several persons, 1376 | including nurses. In order to get away myself I had to pass through the Russian quarter where I had been staying. My Cossack servant and his horse were, with me, but I lost half my luggage in my flight. The Japanese, without lessening their fire uponthe railway station, next commenced the bombardment of the second line of defence formed by the forts in the plain. During the whole of the afternoon of September 1, and during the night and all day of September 2, incessant and furious assaults were directed against the very centre of the military works established to the West of the station, and close to the line itself. The carnage was horrible. The enemy charged the Russian entrenchments, but feil into pits and traps dug for them. When these deep holes became choked with the dying and the dead, the Japanese who followed; carried forward by the furious rush, passed over their comrades beneath, only to be shot down at point, blank range by the lines of Russian Infantry who were posted behind extraordinary entanglements 1789 of barbed wire.

> 'On September 2 a further battle of immense strategic importance was commenced at three o'clock in the morning to the North-east of Lianyang-that is to say, over the whole region between Yen-tai and the River Taj-tse-ho. General Kuroki's Army made an effort to cut the retreat of the Russian Army by a turning movement from the North-cast. In the afternoon the Japanese were able to take the Yen-tai coalmines, which are parallel with the railway. The Russian left wavered slightly under the enemy's furious fire, but a Russian battery riddled the mine premises with shells, and finally the Japanese, who were endeayouring to establish themselves there, had to withdraw under this hail of pro-

I was with a portion of the Fifth Corps, which, after a very hard engagement with the enemy, was resting and tending its wounded, when suddenly sharp firing: against us commenced on our extreme left. Our flank had been turned. The bullets commenced to whistle among these tired and wounded soldiers, who for the most part were sleeping on the ground. Without any sign of panis the men ran to their arms, and commenced to reply vigorously to the fire of our assailants. Had the latter been more numerous we should certainly have been annihilated. At the present moment the battle is still raging along pfront of over twelve m les in extent. The next few hours may be pregnant with surprises-catastrophics ou one side. triumph on the other. At present one can say nothing, except that the Russians are fighting most desperately, and seemdetermined to achieve victory.

REMEDIAL WORK FOR ROUND SHOULDERS.

(1) Raise the arms sideways, level with the shoulders and lunge to the front with the right foot. (2) Let the arms swing a little forward, and then, without pause, swing them back with the utmost energy, doing a quick one-two movement. At the same time bend the right knee still more over. (3) Bring the right foot back to the left, and the hands to the sides. Repeat with the left leg. The utmost will-power must be put into all movements which have for their object the alteration of the human, frame The work should be done daily, and measurements should be taken from time to time, so that the pupil can judge of his own progress and take a pride in it.

(1) Bring the hands behind the back, grasping the left wrist with the right hand. Allow the shoulders to take their normal position. (2) Press the arms at full length well down behind the back, at the same time forcing the shoulders back with the utmost energy. (3) Allow the shoulders to come forward again, and repeat the whole

Raise the arms above the head, and swing them in circular curve to the rear, down past the sides and up to the starting position. Finally, make the palms meet behind the back, as in the exercise in the Course for Boy's. - Cassell's Physical

CONDEMING THE TIBET MISSION.

Relucator

Under the auspices of the Madras Mabajana Sabha a targely attended public meeting was held on September 9 at the Panhaiyappuha Hall', Madras, under the preeidonny of Rai Bahadur P. Ananda Charlu, c. 1 R Saveral apaeches were made con-Lord Curson and the military element which dominates the counsels of the Government of India. It was orged that the Expediton was undertaken solely in Imperial interests and in the interests of British trade, and therefore it was for Great Britain to pay the cost. India, however, would bear some share of the Imperial burden as a unit of the Empire. The following resolution was adopted ; with acclamation :- That this public meeting of the citizens of Madras records its emphatic protest against the injustice of saddling the revenues of India with the cost of the Tibet expedition, and prays that, the Expedition having been undertaken for the promotion of Imperial interests, the whole cost, or at least a substantial portion of it, should be borne by Great Britain. Resolutions were also adopted appointing a committee to draw up and submit a memorial to Parliament embodying the prayer of the former resolution, and placing on record their sense of appreciation of the services of the British Committee of the Congress and distinguished politicians in England in championing the cause of India, special mention being made of Sir Henry Cotton's sympathies and services.

THE bays bird of India has the curious habit of fastening fireflies to its nest with moist clay. ()n a dark night such a nest might be taken for an electric lamp.

The schooner Dart, which was built at Carnarvon (Enr.) 78 years ago, and has ever since been in constant employment, is supposed to be the oldest vessel of her kind sailing under the British flag. The crew includes captain, 70 years of age; mate, 72; cook, 71; and a seaman, 61, who were all boys together, and are believed to be the oldest crew affect.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

THE amazing richness of the Australian Continent in healing roots and herbs has long been the wonder of scientists. For untold ages the natives of that country had only the juices and essences of these roots and herbs for medicine. How effective they proved, even in their crude form, is evinced by the extraordinary health which the natives enjoyed as borne out by Captain

Cook, the discoverer of Australia. Some years back, Mr Charles Forde, an eminent scientist, conceived the idea of so utilising the essences of certain of these Australian plants that their healing pro-perties might be made useful to modern man. By long and careful investigation and experiment he at last gained the knowledge required. He found himself the discoverer of a natural vegetable substance which acted on the liver and digestive organs directly and more offective. ly than any medicine known. The best laboratories, the most modern plant, and all that science dictated as being best for the purpose was requisitioned in the commedicine form, and the result of it all was the production a few years back of the most perfect medicine of modern times. This medicine was produced in the form of small beans, which, being prepared for action on the liver, were called Bile Beans.

Without the slightest discomfort, Bile Beans prompt the liver and digestive organs to act in nature's normal way, leaving those organs strengthened and stimulated to continue the performance of their duties without further assistance. They produce a gentle action on the bowels and ridding the system of all impurities. Their price brings them within the reach of all and they are the safest family

Charles Forde's Bile Beans for Biliousness are a cure for indigestion, ansemia, weakness, female ailments, heat fag,

HONGKONG, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1904.

OBSTRUCTING FOREIGNERS IN CHINA the treaty ports, are bestirring themselves in order to create obstructive barriers against foreigners opening shops and stores outside the recognised area of the treaty ports. A brief note recently sent us by a correspondent from Canton, announced that the Commercial men of the City of Rams have establish ed there a Chamber of Commerce. It is not easy at all times to apprehend what the functions of such a body are in place like Centon. We may safely in fer, however, that its duties correspond to some extent with those which devolve upon such a Chamber wherever con stituted. A short extract from a native paper more recently published, indicated that the authorities are arousing themselves to prevent a contravention of the treaty by foreigners, who, under a foreign name, may be determined to open business outside the allotted area The native press informs us that the Sub-Prefect of Fatshan has received orders from his superiors to search throughout the whole mart, in order to ascertain if, under a foreign flag, there are shops that have placed themselves within the grasp of the law. If such are found a month's grace will ting of the 5th, after business hours, and be given, and if, at the expiration of that time, the said shop still remains open, it will be forcefully closed. Today we learn from another communication from our correspondent that this is | was no traffic where the paper was placed. but a part of a wider movement, which He would visit the promises before giving a is, apparently, set on foot at Peking, decision. with the object not only of disaslowing Lawn Bowls. the interior, but further to prevent any Bowls competition was played yesterday at made a full General. mixed company of Chinese and Eu ropeans in partnership, from carrying on such a business. The native Chamber of Commerce is instructed to issue foreigners from residing and trading in constitution which in the future will prohibit this. This attitude of the and favourably known, to take over the Chinese is, of course, not new. We duties hitherto carried out by Mr Perrie, recall at least one case, where a foreign store was closed in Fatshan, and closed in a most summary way. Local officials at times assume a virtue though they have it not. The present movement however, would appear to have assumed ment depots, en route, at Weibaiwei, and more definite complexion, for it appears to have been inspired at the centre, and to be engineered by bodies of capable and self-interested men at the different extremities of the Emp're. It would appear as if it Theft of Silk. were a part of a general attempt to obstruct the extension of foreign trade in Chins-of which the recent introduction of so many native steamers on the Canton river is but a phase-that they may conserve for themselves as far as they possibly can, the profits of the internal trade, which is bound to indifficult to fight. Of course no one can n the abstract, blame the Chinese for watching over their own interests; nor can blame attach itself to the authorities for insisting on the necessity of conforming to the articles of the international treaty, especially if they applied them-north-east of Shaopingtau). In Dalny, the well-built godowns an barracks, numbering about a hundred besides a telegraph office and station, have not been destroyed. Our booty there included about 430 railway carts, 50 sampans for use at the wharves, about 2,000 tons of coal, and 20,000 sleepers. We found the dock and pontoon in perfect condition, although a considerable portion of the largest wharf had broken and fallen into the sea. A few steam launches were found

On the 1st June a strong force of the enemy occupied a position near Shiwantaikou, (some three miles and a half to the south-west of Lonchontau) and Fensuilingteu (about a mile south-west of Antsushan). Some thoughtless people show an inclination to cavil at the decision on the part of the military authorities but if they only stopped to think, perhaps they would not do so. What if our defenders should catch cold from exposure to the night air, or worse still, had no one to waswer their call for shaving water, or something stimu ating after a night on sentry duty? A hundred coolies or so with their masters bag and baggage would probably be an encumberance on a night march, but surely the health of the troops should be the first consideration in camp !

Why should we drink out of the same glass and in the same room as a coolis or an Indian ? said a European constable. He referred to the Canteen at the Magisbreey, a visit to which would convince anyone that there is room for improvement! And further, why are we not supplied with a chair or two to sit down upon? True, there is a stool, on which the Chinese constables sit and there is one chair-no bottom to it, however, Look at the Inspector's room! They have tables and chairs; and when they receive a visit from a friend they can invite him in to ait down. Can we? Imagine asking a friend with Indians and Chinese-where he would find not even a spittoon. Now, the charge for a pint of beer is 16 cent at the Canteen and only 12 cents at any similar canteen in the Colony; therefore, it is only right that we should expect to find accommodation at least equally as good as that provided elsewhere. Such were the complaints made by a European. constable a few days ago, and he appears to have good ground for his grievances. even a cursory observation will prove that. OBSTRUCTING FOREIGNERS IN CHINA.

A Native Paper on New Commercial Arrangements. (From a Correspondent.)

CANTON, October 6.

The (native) Chamber of Commerce has decided on its new rules and regulations. The 57th Article contains certain regulations, which pertain to international commerce, which concern both Chinese and Westerners when they are in partnership. This Article is somewhat the same as the Oth sub-section of the 8th division of the foreign Treaty, which provides that foreigners shall not be allowed to open downs and shops outside the limits of the Treaty ports. And yet this new provision is somewhat different, though it may be feared it will offer a pretext for unpleasant-

CANTON NOTES.

(From Our Correspondent.)

CANTON, October 10. About 9 p.m. on Saturday evening a fire broke out near and at the back of the Out tom House. Fortunately, there was only a slight breeze from the North, but had been strong there is no doubt that the Custom House would have been in great danger. As it was large sparks and small pieces of burning wood fell on the Custom House and Examination shed roofs. The s. Honom also received showers of burning cebris on her decks. The Customs staff with their fire pumps poured streams of water on to the roofs, and the fire burnt it-
